Total Expense	1.74%
Transaction Costs	0.00%
Total Investment Charge	1.74%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund participated in the strong start to the year for equities. Stock selection was broadly in line with the MSCI ACWI. Top performers included Meta Platforms Inc, Amazon.com Inc, and ICON plc. The social media giant Meta continues to deliver stellar results ahead of market expectations. The company was able to raise its guidance which implies attractive revenue growth off a tough base. Amazon has hit its stride delivering resilient revenue growth and expanding margins. Importantly for the stock, we have seen signs of revenue acceleration in the cloud business in their latest results. Contract research organisation, ICON saw its share price rally on management's commentary around improving customer sentiment and funding trends. New business activity is encouraging driven by large pharma strength and an uptick in biotech. Ahead of Nike's results where the sportswear giant saw its share price disappoint on lacklustre revenue growth and guidance, we exited the holding. Given our concerns over the North American competitive landscape where niche brands have taken share from them, lacklustre innovation, and losing share in China to domestic brands, we sold the stock in favour of higher conviction ideas.

Market overview

The equity rally continued into 2024, driven by ongoing AI enthusiasm, a positive overall earnings season and the prospect of rate cuts by the Fed. Supportive to markets and hard to ignore has been the resilience of US growth. The Fed once again raised their US GDP growth forecasts. The Goldilocks scenario looks likely with the view that markets generally produce decent returns in an elevated inflation environment if growth holds up. Market breadth broadened out towards the end of the quarter, however, returns so far have been skewed to the mega cap winners with the top 5 stocks accounting for half of the S&P 500 returns year to date. Leadership remains in the hands of the IT and communication services sector which were the standout sectors over the quarter. Investors continue to buy into the AI secular growth story. The semiconductor space was helped by a solid results season led by poster child for AI, Nvidia. Most other sectors enjoyed positive returns with real estate the only sector posting negative returns as bond proxies caught the wooden spoon. Consumer staples were the other underperformer hurt by their defensive nature amidst a risk on rally as well as poor earnings reports for the sector.

Looking ahead

As well as the rate of inflation coming down, the main driver for the stock market rally in 2023 was that the world skirted a widely expected recession. If these conditions can continue to hold then markets can progress further. Of course, nothing is certain. The apple cart could be upset by a corporate earnings downturn, further deterioration in the Chinese economy as deflation and the weak property sector takes its toll, and inflation not playing ball (resulting in more monetary tightening). Nonetheless, the current macro data points to lower risks compared to this time last year. This bodes well for another positive year in 2024.
