Cost ratios (annual) including VAT as at 30 June 2025

	Class C
Based on period from:	01/07/2022
Total Expense	1.49%
Transaction Costs	0.01%
Total Investment Charge	1.50%
1 Year Total Expense	1.48%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

Over the quarter, the fund returned 3.5% (Class C) behind the benchmark return of 6.2%. The fund's underperformance was primarily due to the underperformance from the global equity component in the fund. Asset allocation also detracted from overall performance, as the fund maintained an underweight position in global equities during the quarter.

The equity component was buoyed by higher global stock markets. However, its return lagged the MSCI All Country World Index. Notable weakness came within natural fishing grounds for quality compounders, namely healthcare (ICON, UnitedHealth, Thermo Fisher and Elevance), luxury goods (LVMH) and payments processing (Fiserv). Although there were stock specific reasons for the underperformance, there were also broad disruptive shifts in competitive backdrops and addressable markets that meant we were fighting against the tide.

The fixed income component of the Fund performed in line with the overnight cash benchmark. Returns were driven by the yield carry, and also the overweight duration benefitting from the fall in yields over the reporting period. The duration profile will be increased when market conditions dictate, but for now focus on ultra-short dated Government and Supranational issues due to the steep inversion of the yield curve out to three years (negative carry) does not justify extending duration.

Market overview

Despite persistent eye-catching headlines and market noise, underlying economic fundamentals have remained relatively stable. The divergence between soft data (such as subjective sentiment surveys and leading indicators) and hard data (actual economic performance) has widened, yet investors have increasingly focused on a more constructive outlook for the coming year. This optimism is underpinned by a supportive monetary and fiscal policy environment globally.

Global equity markets reached new highs by the end of the second quarter, completing a notable rebound from the sharp sell-off triggered by the initial 'Liberation Day' announcement of US tariffs on April 2nd. Since hitting a 17-month low on April 8th, the MSCI All Country World Index (ACWI) has risen by 24%, regaining all the lost ground and more.

Trump's 'reciprocal tariff' announcements initially generated significant market volatility and prompted many economists to rapidly revise global growth forecasts downward. The revisions were largely driven by expectations of higher inflation, which was anticipated to erode consumers' disposable income and dampen spending on discretionary goods such as vehicles, travel, and leisure activities.

However, after a string of policy reversals and delays in tariff implementation, combined with resilient 'hard' economic data, investor confidence was quickly restored. The equity market rebound has stood in contrast to continued pressure on the US dollar, which has fallen to a three-year low amid growing concerns over the sustainability of US fiscal metrics and decelerating growth momentum.

Looking ahead

Looking ahead, some slowdown is expected as businesses and consumers adopt a cautious stance ahead of potential tariff changes. However, this is unlikely to prompt aggressive monetary easing. The US Federal Reserve is expected to maintain a "wait and see" approach, with only two rate cuts forecast for the second half of the year. Inflation may edge above 3% in the coming six months due to tariff effects, justifying a "higher for longer" stance on interest rates. Ultimately, while the outlook remains uncertain, the base case points to slower growth, sticky inflation, and narrower profit margins. A more definitive resolution on tariffs will be key to shaping market direction and policy responses in the months ahead.
