Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund had a sterling performance in 2025 and performed ahead of its peers and in line with the benchmark during the year. This performance is due to our prudent management of the fund where we did not take excessive bets against the benchmark, given the volatility prevalent in 2025.

Market overview

The year 2025 was, in general, a very eventful and volatile year for financial markets with global politics dominating the news flow. South African capital and currency markets were not spared this rout either. The rand strengthened through the last quarter and into year-end. Monthly USD/ZAR averages fell from ~17.28 in October to ~17.02 in December, and the spot finished late-December near 16.60, a double-digit appreciation for the full year. This tailwind coincided with risk-on in EM and firmer precious-metals terms of trade. The firmer currency suppressed fuel and imported-goods inflation, visible in the November CPI print at 3.5% y/y, with transport inflation cooling to 0.7% while core edged only to 3.2%. Lower pass-through reinforced the disinflation trend, lifting real carry on SAGBs.

The South African Reserve Banks' (SARB) monetary policy committee (MPC), in its last meeting in November and in a unanimous vote cut the repo rate by a further 25 basis points, to 6.75%, noting temporary non-core pressures and small downward revisions to the inflation outlook on rand strength and lower oil prices. Guidance remains meeting-by-meeting with the bank's quarterly predictive model (QPM) implying gradual easing.

The minister of finance, Mr Gondwane, tabled the medium-term budget policy statement (MTBPS) on 12 November 2025. In the statement, National Treasury projected primary surplus of -0.9% of GDP in 2025/26, deficit narrowing over the MTEF, and debt peaking in the current fiscal year and stabilising around the mid-70s % of GDP in the outer years. The minister affirmed the inflation target shift to 3% ±1 as a long-term anchor. S&P Global Ratings upgraded SA's sovereign credit rating one notch higher to BB+ with a positive outlook. The rationale for this upgrade was based on improved growth/fiscal trajectory and reduced Eskom-related contingencies.

Looking ahead

We expect headline inflation to remain near the new 3% target, with SARB expecting average inflation of ~3.3–3.6%, influenced by administered price adjustments, energy costs, and a firm exchange rate. SARB has signalled a gradual easing cycle, likely delivering a further ~50bp of total cuts in 2026, contingent upon stable inflation and FX conditions. Dollar weakness, strong commodities, and fiscal reform will help maintain a firmer rand. This should support imported disinflation, feeding through to SARB's easing judgment. Continued fiscal discipline, with debt-to-GDP peaking around 77–78%, stabilising and coming off in the outer years is expected. This should be supported by primary budget surpluses and is critical for sovereign rating dynamics. Following the S&P upgrade to BB (Positive), the path is set for possible further upgrades in 2026, especially if reforms hold steady—enhancing investor confidence in the bond space. With inflation near target and expected rate cuts, long-end yields are likely to stay below recent peaks.

However, risks remain that given the fluidity of the global geopolitical backdrop, ZAR remains vulnerable and may come under pressure from a recovering US dollar or global risk-off events. This could erode disinflation benefits and delay easing. Risk of fiscal slippage, especially if political pressure undermines the debt consolidation trajectory or leads to additional sovereign support would weigh heavily on spreads and yields.
