

Melville Douglas Income Fund Limited

US Dollar Bond Class

Fund information update at 31 May 2023

What is the fund's objective?

The objective of the Class Fund is to provide a return in excess of its benchmark in US Dollars, whilst seeking to maintain a high degree of capital preservation.

What does the fund invest in?

The Class Fund invests primarily in quality global fixed interest securities, and, where in the opinion of the Investment Manager, direct investment in fixed interest securities will not achieve sufficient diversification to achieve the Class Fund's objective, in other collective investment schemes, money market instruments and cash that will maximise total returns in US Dollars.

What possible risks are associated with this fund?

The risk rating seen below is designed to give an indication of the level of risk, measured by volatility, associated with this specific portfolio. In order to arrive at the specific risk rating of the portfolio in question, Melville Douglas measures the volatility of the fund, in the form of standard deviation, over a three year rolling period, and compares the result to internal risk parameters. Please note that these risk ratings are designed as a guide only.

Transaction Costs	0.00%	0.00%
Total Investment Charge	1.17%	0.86%
1 Year Total Expense	1.16%	0.86%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The objective of the Class Fund is to provide a return in excess of its benchmark in US Dollars, whilst seeking to maintain a high degree of capital preservation, by investing primarily in quality global fixed interest securities, and, where in the opinion of the Investment Manager, direct investment in fixed interest securities will not achieve sufficient diversification to achieve the Class Fund's objective, in other collective schemes, money market instruments and cash that will maximise total returns in US Dollars.

The Fund's performance for the first quarter was +2.26% (A Class) and +2.47% (X Class) versus the benchmark return of +2.69%.

The Fund outperformed the EAA USD Diversified Bond Peer Group which posted a return of +2.05% in the quarter.

Market overview

Whilst most of 2022 was dominated by sharply rising government bond yields, the quarter under review was characterised by high levels of two-way volatility as bond markets contended with shifting views on central bank's monetary policies for the year ahead. The Bloomberg Global Aggregate Bond index, a broad index that tracks the performance of global investment grade bonds, experienced its best January (gaining +3.3%) and worst February (losing -3.3%) since the inception of the index in 1990. This volatility continued in March with sovereign bond yields falling violently as the demise of three US regional banks and the forced takeover of troubled Swiss bank, Credit Swiss by UBS ignited contagion fears in the banking sector and triggered a swift 'risk off' episode. The added advantage of a 'flight to quality' is that now, quality fixed income assets are offering an attractive yield – a proposition that had been absent for many years.

Looking ahead

March 16th represented the one-year anniversary since the Federal Reserve (Fed) embarked on one of fastest rate tightening cycles since the early 1980's. Rampant inflation and the error of 'being behind the curve' have forced the Fed to sanction a total of 475 basis points of tightening, lifting the Fed Funds rate to levels not seen since 2007. Whilst the pace of hikes has slowed from 75 to 25 basis points moves and arguably, the central bank has reigned in its extreme hawkishness, Fed Chair Jerome Powell has made it clear that the fight against inflation remains the top priority which may necessitate interest rates either rising above forecast levels or potentially staying higher for longer. The Fed is at a difficult juncture, whilst inflation is still excessively high and the economic backdrop remains solid supported by a robust labour market and strong services sector, the lagged effects of aggressive monetary tightening are now exposing cracks in pockets of the financial system.

Fears of contagion in the banking sector in March provoked a significant 'risk off' episode that drove yields markedly lower. The US government two-year yield suffered one of its steepest declines since the crash of 1987 with markets aggressively re-pricing the outlook for interest rates, now expecting rate cuts before year end. This is firmly at odds with the Fed who have communicated that they do not anticipate cutting rates in 2023. We are cognisant that the recent 'risk off' period has tightened financial conditions (wider corporate spreads, lower equity markets etc.) and this alleviates pressure on central banks to an extent but the recent slide in yields and interest rate expectations has, we believe, been too aggressive given resilient economic growth and inflation well in excess of target levels.

Over the short-term, we expect yields to surrender some of the recent slide although a full retracement to 4% plus (on the US government ten-year bond) may be in question as investors will now be wary that more casualties from the lagged effects of sharply higher interest rates may emerge in the coming months. It is somewhat ironic that the catalyst (higher interest rates and yields) for these concerns is actually the same one providing an attractive risk-adjusted haven for investors in times of broader market volatility. Fundamentally, our view remains that inflation is at, or quickly approaching, a 'sticky patch' and economic growth conditions remain resilient (aided by strong employment markets) and in the absence of any additional 'bank bail-out type' scenarios, this supports the view that yields have little incentive to decline meaningfully from current levels.

Given the 'short-term' negative outlook for government bond markets, the Fund maintains a moderately defensive duration strategy relative to benchmark. However, we are cognisant that the majority of the spike in yields is in the rear-view mirror and at current levels, the bond market represents value on a medium to long-term time horizon. As such, we continue the process of incrementally closing the 'duration gap' versus benchmark with the view to potentially trading towards neutral in the coming months. The Fund has maintained the overweight exposure to the US Dollar which despite some weakness in the quarter, has not materially weighed on performance given the relative outperformance of the US bond market versus counterparts such as Germany and Japan. Exposure to the Investment Grade Corporate bond market remains broadly neutral to benchmark and despite higher yields in this sector, we are currently reluctant to increase exposure given our view that spreads may have limited scope to tighten as interest rates remain at higher levels than the market is forecasting.
