Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund in 2Q22 performed ahead of its benchmark and this was due to the relative short duration position we held in the fund during the quarter.

Market overview

South Africa had a somewhat tumultuous quarter with President Cyril Ramaphosa finally lifting the National State of Disaster in early April, signalling an end in sight to the more onerous Covid-related restrictions and restoring hopes of a return to normalcy. The green shoots of optimism were further dampened by the natural disaster which befell KwaZulu-Natal and the Eastern Cape to a lesser extent, early in the quarter. Widespread flooding due to inclement weather led to significant losses, some of which are still being tallied. The damage to infrastructure was also considerable, and the provincial government has estimated that infrastructure repair alone will cost about R17 billion. The Port of Durban, which is also a conduit for the import of food, had a backlog of 9000 containers which took more than a week to clear. These supply-chain disruptions likely contributed in exacerbating food cost push factors and spurring inflation higher. This is over and above the cost push factors on oil, commodities and food caused by the Russia-Ukraine conflict.

The conflict in Ukraine continues unabated, with no end in sight. In trying to mediate, several countries including Israel, France and Turkey have stepped into the ring, however, there has been little to no positive result. Consequently, global investors remain risk-averse and asset prices in general sold off sharply during the quarter. The upward trend in South Africa and global inflation continued and as a result we saw the SARB and other central banks, US Fed in particular, turning more hawkish and raising interest rates quite aggressively. Business sentiment and leading business cycle indicators were left understandably depressed. The yields on long-term government bonds traded higher (touching 11.0%) and the currency weakening over the quarter as high inflation, rolling power cuts and higher interest rates had investors fretting over South Africa's economic outlook.

Green shoots from the infrastructural led economic reforms that President Ramaphosa and his government have embarked on, are beginning to show. Both Moody's and S&P rating agents revised the country's credit outlook upwards, with Moody's from negative to stable whilst S&P revised its outlook to positive. Whilst these developments are positive and encouraging, they do not mask the challenges that remain in stabilising debt and that have been exacerbated by the current economic conditions the country and the globe find themselves in.

Bond yields in South Africa have adjusted to these concerns and are offering good long-term value for investors. It is however very difficult to predict how long the war will last and importantly what its short-term effect on inflation and asset prices will be.

Looking ahead

In this environment, we expect volatility to persist and believe it is best to be defensively positioned in such circumstances. We will reassess our position as risk unwinds and some level of certainty returns.
