Based on period from:	01/04/2019
Total Expense	1.52%
Transaction Costs	0.08%
Total Investment Charge	1.60%
1 Year Total Expense	1.51%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund NAV was impacted by weak global equity markets as investors de-risked in response to the Ukraine conflict and a more hawkish Federal Reserve.

Performance lagged the MSCI All Country World index in the first quarter of 2022. This was partly a result of not holding energy stocks, which performed well amidst the surge in oil prices. There was also a de-rating of quality-growth stock valuations amidst a higher interest rate outlook. In addition, Meta Platforms shares fell sharply on concerns about competition from short-form video (e.g., TikTok), privacy changes to Apple's operating system, higher costs, and supply chain and inflation hitting advertisers' budgets.

LVMH, the world's largest luxury goods company, was purchased for the fund. Luxury goods support people's identities, which are perceived to be sufficiently important that price is no object (within reason). Hence, LVMH typically has pricing power amidst a higher inflation backdrop.

Market overview

Navigating global stock markets this year has been akin to skiing down a Winter Olympics moguls slope. There have been bumps with every twist and turn. Namely, a growth-to-value investment style rotation, stagflation worries, and a European war. Investors abhor all this uncertainty and duly marked down share prices.

The outlier amidst the sell-off has been energy. For equity investors the sector is feast or famine, and little in between. The MSCI All Country Energy sector index (which includes the oil majors, drillers and oil service companies) surged over +20% during the quarter as oil prices broke through $120 per barrel. Brent crude was trading below $20 per barrel two years ago. As the oil industry has a poor track record of generating consistent returns above the cost capital and pinpointing cyclical tops and bottoms is not our forte, we have little direct exposure to commodity producers. The tortoise-and-the-hare benefit of owning steady compounders will outweigh near-term FOMO.

Another macroeconomic headwind is the cost-of-living squeeze that will reduce demand for products and services as consumers tighten their purse-strings. In addition, higher interest rates lowers the present value of cash flows in future years. Because quality-growth stocks tend to trade on higher price-to-earnings ratios than the broader market, they were disproportionately sold off when the Federal Reserve became more hawkish. As these are also the type of companies the fund seeks to invest in, performance lagged benchmark indices during the quarter.

Looking ahead

The silver-lining of the market sell-off is that it has provided compelling entry points for selected high-quality investments. For example, Nike's share price is down -20% year-to-date but the business continues to report robust sales momentum and pricing power. This well-managed, innovative business is boosting profit margins by skipping the middle-man and increasingly selling products that consumers want via direct digital channels.

Another example is Microsoft. The software giant reported +20% year-on-year sales growth in the fourth quarter, driven by robust demand for its cloud computing services where it is a Big Three player alongside Amazon and Google. Cloud computing penetration sits at only 27%, providing a long runway for growth. The share price sell-off has lowered Microsoft's valuation back to pre-pandemic levels even though its business mix has structurally shifted to a sustainably higher plain of profitability and growth. It justifies its place as one of the fund's largest holdings.

During these bouts of volatility our tried-and-tested investment philosophy provides objectivity. Rather than seeking to catch every macroeconomic and geopolitical wind-shift, the fund holds a diversified portfolio of quality compounders that can deliver competitive inflation-plus returns without undue risk. Our mantra is to identify great business models operating in sustainably better than average growth markets, monitor their economic moat, avoid excess valuations and hold one's nerve through periodic bouts of investor nervousness. It is a long game.
