Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund price hit new highs, propelled by the broad uplift in global equity markets on better than expected earnings results, robust economic data and relatively benign bond markets. Although the fund delivered an attractive absolute return over the quarter, it trailed the MSCI AC World index. Notable laggards included Chinese internet companies Tencent and Alibaba as the domestic regulator sought to curb their dominance, wind farm developer Ørsted on mixed corporate results, and multinational insurer Prudential on a delay to the spin-off of its US business. These negatives were partly offset by Nike, Facebook and Alphabet which rallied on blowout earnings results. As a reminder, the fund holdings are limited to 25 to 35 names to ensure only the highest conviction ideas are owned to achieve a competitive long-term risk-adjusted return. The quid pro quo of a concentrated portfolio is that this will enable performance to deviate, as a result of stock specifics, from the MSCI AC World index composed of 3,000 constituents.

Market overview

The glass remained half full rather than half empty in the second quarter of 2021. Contrary to the perceived laws of market physics, bond and global equity markets advanced in tandem in reaction to the sharpest rise in core US inflation since 1992. Wishful thinking or not, investors and central bankers viewed the inflation data as transitory given the year-over-year starting point was from the exceptionally low base set during last year's draconian lockdowns.

Underpinning the stock market rally was the announcement of strong corporate earnings results as pent-up consumer demand kicked in. Contagious new COVID variants and a worrying pickup in new cases (most notably in Africa), has had little impact on developed economies as hospitalisation levels have remained low given the virus has been pushed down to the unvaccinated but more resilient young.

Looking ahead

We expect outsized positive earnings surprises for the rest of the year as there remains a disconnect between "top down" projections by macro-economists and "bottom up" forecasts by company analysts. The recovery in developed economies has been further underpinned by accelerated COVID vaccination programmes and by the Biden Administration's gargantuan spending packages.

There is enough earnings growth momentum to make up for the countervailing impact on valuations as monetary support is gradually wound down. There will be bumps along the road (e.g., inflation, COVID and trade war scares) but the path of least resistance is for equity markets to grind higher off conservative earnings expectations. Beyond this year's economic rebound we expect the global economy to revert to its pre-COVID sluggish growth trend. Our investment strategy is well suited to this backdrop as it is centred around selecting companies that can grow under their own steam rather than being dependent on a robust economy to drive sales. To reiterate, our approach is to:

- 1) Pay a fair price for a concentrated and diversified portfolio of profitable and growing businesses.
- 2) Closely watch the holdings for any changes to competitive advantages and addressable markets.
- 3) Let patience and time do the heavy lifting, rather than seek to time markets.
