Total Expense	1.74%
Transaction Costs	0.00%
Total Investment Charge	1.74%

Total Expense (TER): This ratio shows the charges, levies and fees relating to the management of the portfolio and is expressed as a percentage of the average net asset value of the portfolio, calculated over the period shown and annualised to the most recently completed quarter. A higher TER does not necessarily imply a poor return, nor does a low TER imply a good return. The current TER should not be regarded as an indication of future TERs.

Transaction Costs (TC): This ratio shows the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the buying and selling of the fund's underlying assets. TC are a necessary cost in administering the fund and impacts fund returns. It should not be considered in isolation as returns may be impacted by many other factors over time including market returns, the type of fund, investment decisions of the investment manager and the TER.

Total Investment Charges (TIC): This ratio is simply the sum of the TER and TC, showing the percentage of the value of the fund incurred as costs relating to the investment of the fund. It should be noted that performance figures account for all costs included in the TIC ratio, so you should not deduct the TIC from performance figures, the performance is already net of the TIC.

Fund review

The fund benefited from a sharp rebound in global equity markets. In addition, positive stock selection enabled outperformance compared to the MSCI All Country World index. Top performers included Partners Group, Amazon.com and Experian. Partners Group, a private markets asset manager, received a boost to its assets under management and performance fees as a result of higher equity and bond markets. Amazon.com reported better than expected quarterly results and upped its forecasts for the next quarter. Its profit margins surged as scale advantages, operational improvement, and levelling off capital expenditure kicked in. Experian, the world's largest credit bureau, also reported better than expected corporate results, confirming the resilience of its business model despite a difficult lending backdrop for its clients.

During the quarter the fund initiated an investment in Taiwan Semiconductor Manufacturing Company (TSMC), which makes most of the world's leading-edge microchips. Its clients are "fabless" companies (including Apple, Nvidia and Qualcomm) that design but do not manufacture their own chips. There is a long growth runway, driven by the ongoing digitisation of things (i.e. higher chip content), 5G and high-performance computing megatrends, and outsourcing by integrated device manufacturers. TSMC's leadership in the manufacturing process and its diversified end markets (including data centres, automobiles, PCs, internet of things, wireless, and sensors) has led to a smoother earnings profile than more narrowly focused semiconductors companies.

Market overview

Equities were back in the saddle after a bumpy ride over the prior three-months. Softer than expected inflation data from the US, Europe and the UK spurred a powerful rally amidst expectations monetary tightening had peaked. Whether Federal Reserve Governor Powell can pull off a Captain Sully remains a topic of debate. Markets are assuming the rose-tinted view for now.

With investors more confident about a soft landing, performance broadened out beyond the "magnificent seven" monopolistic US Tech stocks that had dominated returns earlier in the year. Except for energy, all the major industry sectors exhibited gains. Unsurprisingly, the laggards included defensive sectors, such as consumer staples and healthcare. Energy also underperformed due to a lower oil price as the OPEC+ cartel squabbled about quotes and non-OPEC increased production. Industrials and IT stocks outperformed on the expectation less hawkish central bank policy would alleviate pressure on the economy and on their share price valuations.

Looking ahead

Human misbehaviour has been a constant in financial markets through the ages. The pattern stretches back to the likes of the South Sea bubble, the great railway mania, the Australian land boom, the British bicycle mania, the Wall Street crash, Japan in the 1990s, the Dot-Com bubble to the "no boom and bust" subprime bubble. Times may change but human behaviour, foibles and emotions are constant.

What lessons can we draw today? One is that there is some truth to the adage that markets take the lift on the way down and the stairs on the way up. The most recent major market nadir was a little over a year ago, i.e. October 2022. Since then, the MSCI All Country World is up over 30%. Despite the temptation for investors to "take profits", big rallies tend to beget further gains. A study by Oppenheimer & Co found that the second year following a rally from a major low has been positive in 19 out of 22 cycles (the exceptions were 1932, 1947 and 1960). Another historical pattern is that equity markets tend to do well during a US presidential election year, particularly if the incumbent is running. Clearly, it is in the incumbent's interest to keep voters happy by ensuring they are all in gainful employment. In short, the odds are in your favour in 2024.

Beyond the vagaries of market timing, we remain long-term investors of some of the world's best businesses at reasonable valuations. These proven winners have been selected for their metronomic ability to create shareholder value based on a sustained competitive edge combined with a compelling growth runway. We are reminded of Charlie Munger, who was Warren Buffett's business partner and who sadly passed away in November. He said, "the big money is not in the buying or selling, but in the waiting".
